EDITOR'S LETTER

From the editor

Ivgeni Zarubinski, Founder and Editor

Where in the world is something done best?

It sounds like a simple question. Most of the time it is answered with the same few famous names.

The Worldworthy 100 starts somewhere else: with what people report after they have been there. Millions of visitors, in every language, writing about the meal they ate, the trail they walked, the museum that kept them longer than they planned. To that we add independent recognition, public records and an editor's check. Nobody can apply, pay to enter or buy a higher position.

Follow that evidence and the map changes. The world's No. 1 pizzeria is in Mérida, Mexico, not in Naples. The museum at the top of our list is a hall of tanks in Dorset. The most loved city is Cape Town, and the city rising fastest is Vilnius. Excellence turns out to be spread far wider than the guidebooks suggest, and much of it sits in towns that have never had a headline.

This first edition holds 46 rankings and 4,550 laureates in 129 countries. Some of the results will surprise you. A few surprised us. Where we got something wrong, tell us: every correction is published with its date.

To every laureate in these pages: congratulations. You earned it from the people you served.

Ivgeni Zarubinski
Founder and Editor, Worldworthy

HOW WE RANK

How the ranking works

The Worldworthy 100 is an editorial ranking by the Worldworthy research desk, based on a methodology developed by the desk.

It draws on first-hand accounts and recommendations from visitors, interviews with visitors, journalistic research into international guides and the press, and public and professional records. Every list is reviewed and signed off by the editor.

Nobody can apply, pay to enter or buy a higher position.

Destinations that the EU, the UK and the US advise against all travel to are not ranked in the 2026 edition. Corrections are published with their date.

INK

Your Laureate certificate

Approved for use on your social networks.

Download certificate · https://worldworthy.org/laureates/

You spent years earning this. Now let it work for you.

The Laureate seal for your website and email, a ranking graphic in your name, a framed certificate and a wall plaque.

Market your achievement · https://worldworthy.org/laureates/

Available to ranked laureates only. It does not affect any ranking: nobody can apply, pay to enter or buy a higher position.
